

A Biker's Diary

The story of a biker is the story of life - the mastery of man over machine, the dedication to sport, temptation, deceit, truth and respect. Vertical Tunes Productions an audio/video recording and production company based in Decatur, Georgia has captured the essence of a biker's life in A Biker's Diary, their latest project seeking national retail distribution. Coupled with a dynamic hip hop soundtrack, A Biker's Diary tells the urban story of a married biker who gets caught up in the complexities of a biker's world and loses focus on what's important, his family. The climax strikes a familiar chord with anyone who has ever made a drastic mistake and sought redemption. The dramatic detail is the backdrop to a sensational display of motorcycle stunt performances that lace the entire cinematic piece.

Film director Alonzo Jones grew up in Atlanta with a musical background and a sincere love for riding motorcycles. This upbringing inspired the development of A Biker's Diary and subsequently Vertical Tunes Productions. The company's goal is to provide the highest quality in recording and DVD production. The latest project is the first in a line of outstanding productions backed by Vertical Tunes' commitment to customer satisfaction and professionalism. Current marketing and promotional efforts include the development of 18"x24" posters, 5"x7" postcards, video demos, website promos, internet distribution and local retail outlets. Placement in a retail outlet would expose the world to the intricacies of a biker's life and expand the reach into independent film production.
